

Estonian Communist Party boss Romanenko, on a trade mission to Britain, is shot to death in Edinburghs railway station. His Scotland Yard bodyguard Frank Pagan immediately nabs the assassin, an Estonian-American loner named Kiviranna, but Pagan is thwarted when Kiviranna commits suicide. In quick succession Pagan meets Kristina Vaska, daughter of an Estonian dissident, is shunted off the case by British Intelligence and is almost killed by a KGB assassin. An old Estonian patriotic poem carried by Romanenko and Kristinas tale of a Baltic, anti-Soviet Brotherhood intrigue Pagan, as does the beautiful Kristina.

When the stoplight is RED but there are no cars coming from any direction-- this is referred to as a WHITE light because you are clear to go.

White Light is one of Pollock's last paintings and the only one he completed in He made it in part by squeezing paint directly from a tube onto the canvas. I could compare my music to white light, which contains all colors. Only a prism can divide the colors and make them appear; this prism could be the spirit of the.
